The Sky Garden is an elevated park with cafes, bars, waterfalls with a library in altitude committed to keep stretches of the urban jungle green as green as can be. The latest addition to SM City North EDSA, the country's first SM mall, defines its continuing redevelopment as an environmentally intensive event as it is a beehive of business and commerce. The Sky Garden occupies the North EDSA mall to 428,000 square meters making it the world's third largest. JOHN MENDOZA

Palace men explain merger of 2 parties to Lakas founder

By Alcino Papa, Michael Lim Ubas and Philip C. Toboza

LIKE PENITENT YOUNGSTERS EAGER TO APPEASE AFTER causing a revered parent great vexation and annoyance, ruling party leaders yesterday were all over themselves attempting to mollify former President Fidel Ramos.

Gabriel Claudio, the presidential adviser on political affairs, said he and Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita would be meeting last night with the former President to explain the merger of the Lakas-CMD with the Subalitang ng Malayang Pilipino (Kampi).

"I'm ready to act on his suggestion," said Claudio.

"You came used to getting a dressing-down. He was my father's boss and he has been like a father to all of us in the party," he said.

Ramos, Lakas' founding chair, earlier, enabled the occasion to mark the merger of the Lakas-CMD and Kampi last Thursday, where he was supposed to have delivered an inspirational message. He called a press conference the next day to denounce the "merger issue" with which the merger was done and the "distortion" and lack of consultation.

House Speaker Prospero Nograles recorded that party leaders should have spent more time consulting with Ramos, but though they wanted to, he said, the ex-President was on a foreign trip.

"I think that he would never qualify time to meet with us but we had a time line and he was ahead," Nograles said.

"But we had absolutely no had intention here so we ran with address. We

Secretary General Claudio, political adviser of President Macapagal-Arroyo, said in a phone interview that the administration camp did not feel insulted by the Palaka member given by Rosas to the party.

"We don't mind it at all," said Claudio, adding:

White House chef shares Obamas' dining secrets

By Robert K. Nagales

WASHINGTON, DC—US PRESIDENT Barack Obama likes simple meals with fish, meatless vegetables and brown rice.

This and other interesting details were shared by Crisanta Paula Gamalison, the Filipino innovation chef at the White House, in an interview with the Inquirer at the future address: 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., as she is called by her family and colleagues, has been top toque since 2005 when she was appointed by First Lady Laura Bush. Last January, the Obamas decided to retain Gamalison as their chef and partner for healthy eating.

In a statement announcing that Gamalison will stay on as the administration's head chef, Michelle Obama noted that the Filipino, who grew up in San Francisco, Manila, is "also the mom of a young daughter." The First Lady stated, "I appreciate our shared perspective on the importance of healthy eating and healthy families."

Gamalison, 45, studied in the Old Family Dining Room, where a few days later her boss would share a private breakfast with visiting Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, shared her

THE HISTORIC PROVINCE OF PAMPANGA often figures as the landscape and playground for the over-the-top ideas of Cannes Film Festival award-winning director Marilou Diaz-Abaya.

Mendoza, who was born and raised in the small barrio of San Isidro in San Fernando, says the local setting has had a profound influence on his art.

"The province is very rich visually," says Mendoza, who spent most of his young life in Pampanga which he left only when he went to study film arts at the University of Santa Tomas in Manila.

This father, Pastor Mendoza, now a lawyer, and his mother, Gertrude Mendoza, a homemaker who took in embroidery work on the side.

"I think I got my love for plants and gardening from my father and my love for the arts from my mother," he says.

Bahay-bahayan: Halfway house for Aeta schoolkids

By Elizabeth Katipa

THEIR DAYS OF HUNTING AND FORAGING in the forests are almost at an end. April 30 Aeta children and their parents have realized that education is the key to survival in the world beyond their mountain homes in Benguet.

Brown-brown, Dinalupihan, Benguet. But even with a public school in place, the matter of the children getting there and returning to their homes afterward presents a problem. The Brown-brown Elementary School is a 14-kilometer walk from where they live. It's no wonder that absenteeism and dropout rates go up during the rainy season. And even if they stay home during these inclement days, there is not much—sometimes nothing—to eat.

Bahay Katipa, where the children can stay during the week before walking back to their homes on weekends, serves to solve that problem.

It is what one may call a bahay-bahayan—a halfway house that Evelyn Reyes Ben Benavente, a local woman who made good in the big city as a printing associate, has established for friends at Quins International and Family Club of Makati-Banlaan to help build and sustain.

Tornados form when cold polar air meets warm tropical air resulting in a great instability caused by the rising warm air.

Computer crash was GSIS' fault, says contractor

A TECH CONSULTING CONTRACTOR THREATS to sue GSIS for a lawsuit by the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) for the real business of its computer database has said the Manila-based contractor.

Quintana Corp., which supplied the GSIS database software package, said the problem had emerged because GSIS caused their computers to crash because of poor database management and lack of standard backup systems.

Quintana said that the GSIS was the victim in an "unusual" way that led to a crash.

Last week, 2008 officials and Quintana claimed a disaster hit the GSIS caused the agency "catastrophic damage" and no record of the backup of applications for loans, including 20,000 files for claims results by newly retired members.

In a letter to the GSIS dated May 20, Quintana claimed that if the problem had been handled to disaster recovery and implemented proper backup and recovery procedures, all members would not have been left hanging by the crash.

Quintana is the lead system integrator for the GSIS database that brought in the software from GSIS to the application under SAP, which is the software developed and tested by IBM Corp.

GSIS claimed it was supplied with "defective software" and has threatened a series of suits against IBM, SAP and Quintana.

In a statement to the Inquirer, IBM Philippines had mentioned that GSIS did not reject IBM proper services, implementation and implementation of the system.

IBM and its SAP are part of a global GEM (global equipment manufacturer) arrangement between SAP and IBM. Remala is director.

MAKATIMED TURNS 40

Pagaling ng Pagaling

On the occasion of its 40th anniversary, the Makati Medical Center (MMC) embraces the theme of "Pagaling ng Pagaling." Apparently a play on the state of progressive wellness, things are indeed getting so much better over this side of Makati.

It was in the '70s when Makati Medical Center made a name for itself as the country's premier medical institution. Nine decades later, various other industry players have come to the fore and are challenging the leader. Undoubtedly, MakatiMed, as the hospital is fondly called, stands out as this challenge will grow excitement and expectation.

At the helm of this medical institution is its current president, Rose Montenegro, whose incredible background in the industry, banking, and consumer industries makes her perfectly suited for the job. With not a doctor herself, Montenegro is no stranger to the medical field. She comes from a family of medical practitioners—her mother being a surgical nurse, her mother and aunt all doctors and nurses. This is more "instinctually" attuned than the average consumer, and certainly also demonstrates superior surgical savvy without having an agenda. Montenegro remarks, "I think I have a higher understanding of the medical industry than most. And I've been in the MakatiMed all the time since this is my hospital, my life here has been here, my professional is Dr. Goldman. I've been here all the time."

MakatiMed's state-of-the-art new tower building underlines the institution's commitment to better addressing current medical challenges and its legacy of providing top-of-the-line healthcare services.

Montenegro continues her work at MakatiMed as an apostle of care. Having retired from PLDT and moved down her career, she believes she can do something for a hospital that she had an affinity for. "Through the years, I have seen MakatiMed. I would like to bring it back to what it used to be."

On this path of 40 years continues a commitment. "I've known here on what I need to do to bring MakatiMed to its former position of pre-eminence. [Initially] when you thought of health care, the top of mind was MakatiMed. I don't think we've lost our appeal. The brand name still has very high value. But we've given up a lot of market share and a lot of market hegemony. When once upon a time, I think it was to the '70s, if you just went hospital, it was MakatiMed right away. Today, there are other players."

Montenegro recognizes that the competitive in today's environment, there needs to be an understanding of the changing needs in health care. This comes with an article she read which said that a hospital is no longer a "warehouse for the sick." Rather, it is a place to get well. It should provide an atmosphere where patients can be lifted, especially since there are studies that indicate how emotional and spiritual health can help speed up the healing process.

She also believes that the basic patient expectations are for things to work and processes applied by their institutions. Facilities and equipment need not be brand new nor first-of-their-kind, but there have to work. Montenegro explains, "If everything should be working well, everything should contribute to that patient experience or processes where they don't get harassed until they get to the doctor. And even the doctors, they should respect patients' time because their time is so valuable. The patient is already sick and they're made to wait so long. They're already sick and they're shuffling from one place to another because patients have not been considered in the planning of the building allocation. So I think there are many things in the consumer world that can be applied in hospital administration. So I'd like to do that."

"I would like to keep good equipment too. I understand before I came, that the hospital actually invested a significant amount of money in equipment. If you look at the operating room developments, it's very advanced. We're competing with a training call board (computerized) Accreditation standards for hospitals. JCI is supposed to be the end of approval for hospitals. So I'd like to invest in medical equipment and technology, but not for its sake. Because I noticed, some of our competitors are bragging about what they've purchased. I'd rather have about the excellent doctors we have here who are enabled with the latest in medical technology for diagnosis and healing, rather than the equipment. [Equipment] seems to be the competitors, but the key to the enterprise is still the professional. It's still the doctor, and there are ways to make him practice his expertise and his skill better. But it's not as easy as that."

At the same time, Montenegro wants to make sure that the operational support is in place. She continues, "For example, if getting a room is a painful experience, if getting admitted is difficult, if getting my bill corrected is a really tedious task, then I have to make sure that the operational efficiency in the professional non-medical side are equally good. They're so incredibly linked. I cannot say I have great doctors but everything else is mediocre. It's got to be a symbiotic relationship, with the patient really being the center of attention."

Perhaps this dedication and passion come from her educational foundations at the St. Theresa's College, where "the main issue was good at everything that other schools were competitive because that calls for excellence, when everything has to be done well." She says about her work, achieving in her life, "If you're going to do a job, do it well!" It is this same spirit that she is trying to instill her employees, making them think their own, about through it all and better.

And in these Montenegro's more 12 hours a day, or about 60 to 70 hours a week, including weekends. It's a good thing she lives close to the hospital, which compels her to visit the office even on Sundays. "I'm working on Saturday afternoon because it's my commuting. And it also gives me a chance to look at the hospital in different hours of the day. Usually on Sunday, I'm already about for my Monday work. But on Wednesday, I'm behind again because everything has piled up. Work continues. And eventually I work very late. Then on the first time I can say to my corner when I am really feeling that the corner is coming as late as I'm working. And I work late."

With her work you can see too, Montenegro's always good to be efficient. Effective clinical services to MakatiMed patients. And she's looking forward to the day when the patients get that level of healthcare service without having to call up someone they know within MakatiMed. "At the end of the day, that can become a really better than anyone can say 'Doctor!'"

New MakatiMed president Rose Montenegro is focusing on bringing the hospital back to top.

Protect plan holders' money

Editor Jose K. Sarmiento Jr.

By Evangelina Grieco-Disabelle

WE KNOW THAT SEC action and private financial plans are able to increase retirement plans. These were packaged to better insurance that bring an uncertainty look like a trust product to be regulated by the Insurance and Exchange Commission (IIEC) and, thus, our state-of-the-art insurance regulations.

Over the past 10 years, the collapse of more than 30 private companies has reminded us that our million Filipinos. Many of these trust clients, however, are not from their families, and many others include public school teachers and employees, small businesses, poor, etc.

These people lost more than P300 billion in savings to these private companies because of improper regulation. Private plans that promise to pay future income to retirement benefits have been included in our national securities under the regulation of the SEC.

Urgent changes

In 1970 when I was president of the National Society of the Philippines (NSP), I encouraged NSP activities to support the SEC's mission to develop and strengthen the financial and insurance industry.

The SEC played a vital role in the development of the insurance industry. It was the SEC that was instrumental in the creation of the Insurance and Exchange Commission (IIEC) and the Insurance and Exchange Commission (IIEC).

Flawed business model

It was clear to me, even then, that the private business model was flawed. We showed the SEC that the business model was flawed. We showed the SEC that the business model was flawed.

Through many different scenarios, we showed the SEC that the business model was flawed. We showed the SEC that the business model was flawed.

It was not just a flawed business model. There are other key aspects that should have been considered in the development of the private business model.

PLANHOLDERS of the collapsed private firms of the Legacy Group at their concerns in Sen. Benigno Aquino III, chair of the Senate committee investigating the troubled private industry. The Insurance and Exchange Commission revealed in April the losses of Prudential Plans and Permanent Plans to call private plans because of their inadequate trust funds.

to the private company if the insurance plan is given even after they have matured.

Unfair

It is also unfair to plan holders who are not getting what they have paid—simply because they would not pay the full fee.

The private accounting standards allow insurance companies to deduct assets of private companies. Thus, the trust holders usually end up paying the insurance benefits.

Likewise, companies that are not regulated can deduct assets of private companies. This is not fair to the public.

Insurance is a business. It is a business that is regulated. It is a business that is regulated. It is a business that is regulated.

Wrong accounting

We completed the revised accounting guidelines with the review committee of the Insurance and Exchange Commission (IIEC).

It was not just a flawed business model. There are other key aspects that should have been considered in the development of the private business model.

Questions from a Prudential plan holder

My brother and I bought two Prudential plan holders in 2003. Both plans have been paid for. My brother received his certificate of ownership on Oct. 25, 2007. I got mine on June 3, 2008.

After the regular business of the policy, the Prudential Insurance Company, Inc., then also a Prudential Bank (PBI), then issued a PBI plan for the amount paid for the plan.

GF and Pacific Plan held the biggest liability loss in the industry. It was reported that the company was not allowed to sell more in the public sector because of its poor financial condition.

Studies

Many small companies stopped operating because they were not getting the liquidity needed to run the business.

In 2003, the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) led by then Secretary Manuel Romo, III, organized the United States Agency for International Development to conduct studies to strengthen the private industry for the protection of consumers. I provided LGU with actual and relevant studies.

The LGU's study concluded that the private industry was not able to improve the condition of private companies. The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) led by then Secretary Manuel Romo, III, organized the United States Agency for International Development

Growth and decline of preneed industry

PRENEED PLANS are contracts that provide for future services or payments of money at the time of actual need. They are also known as preneed insurance plans.

The preneed industry in the country began in 1984 with the establishment of Pacific Memorial Plan Inc. (PMP) in Manila.

In 1991, Prudential Permanent Plans Inc. (PPPI) followed PMP in offering the first preneed insurance plan in the country.

A trust fund, an asset account that includes assets, real estate and bonds, must provide a sufficient source of money to pay the benefits of the plan.

From 1991 to 2003, PMP's trust fund assets grew by more than 100 percent. In 2003, PMP's trust fund assets were worth P17.5 billion.

In 2003, PMP's trust fund assets were worth P17.5 billion. In 2004, PMP's trust fund assets were worth P17.5 billion.

In 2003, both PMP and PPPI filed for rehabilitation with the National Government Trust Fund, citing their inability to service debts and pay future claims.

Early this year, insurance broker and Asian Spirit Airlines founder Noel Ochoa announced his purchase of PMP for P500 million.

The industry's decline can be attributed to the combination of one-sided plans, the depreciation of assets in 1990 that led to the liquidation of PMP, and the lack of adequate trust funds.

preneed, collection among preneed companies and their affiliates, investment in real estate, and the lack of liquidity to pay the benefits of the plan.

In January this year, the Insurance and Exchange Commission (IIEC) announced that it would investigate the industry.

A MILLION ROSARIES IN HONOR OF MARY, MEDIATRIX OF ALL GRACE

"There is no problem, however difficult it maybe, whether temporal or spiritual, personal or familial, national or international that cannot be solved by the prayer of the Rosary!" (Sister Lucy of Fatima)

COME AND JOIN US IN HUMBLE PRAYER TO BESEECH HEAVEN FOR DIVINE GRACES!

This initiative, spearheaded by the Confraternity of Mary, Mediatrix of All Grace strives and hopes to offer to Our Lady a bouquet of 1 Million rosaries from all her devotees: the clergy, the religious and the faithful from far and wide, both in the Philippines and abroad who will pray the Holy Rosary on a personally chosen time day/s from May 31, 2009 Feast of the Pentecost and to culminate on December 8, 2009.

Our intentions for this Rosary Crusade are:

1. For the Holy Father and all the bishops and clergy of the world

Beginning June 19, 2009, the Universal Church will observe the Year of the Priest as declared by Pope Benedict XVI. Let us pray for the Holy Father in his effort to renew the priesthood. Let us also pray for the sanctification of all the clergy and the religious and in particular our bishops and parish priests, that they may be fortified in leading and guiding the Catholic faithful to a life of holiness amidst an increasingly secularized environment.

2. For the sanctification of the family

The family is the basic unit of society; destroy it and society will eventually crumble. In the face of the many schemes to tear down the family, especially with the attempt to pass the dangerous Reproductive Health Bill, let us turn to the Mediatrix of All Grace to mediate with Jesus, the Author of all graces for the Filipino family so they will be preserved from the evil that has engulfed our society.

3. For True devotion to our Blessed Mother to flourish in our country

According to the great Marian saint, St. Louis Grignion de Montfort, "Mary is the pathway to her Son, leading souls quickly and securely to Jesus Christ, the Eternal Wisdom" who is the source of true and lasting spiritual and moral regeneration.

In observance of the Year of the Immaculate Heart of Mary and the Sacred Heart of Jesus as declared by the CBCP beginning June 29, 2009 let us pray for the grace of a deeper and true devotion to Mary so she can lead us to true devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

4. For the graces necessary to guide the authorities deliberating the authenticity of the apparitions of the Blessed Virgin, as Mediatrix of All Grace at Lipa.

Prior to the canonical approval of the Fatima apparitions, the country of Portugal was in a grave state of decadence in the spiritual, moral, political and economic sphere. But a miraculous transformation transpired which the Portuguese Hierarchy could only attribute to the positive response of the faithful and the subsequent official recognition of the apparitions on October 13, 1930.

Let us pray that those who are tasked to deliberate on the 1948 apparitions at Lipa will be guided by Holy Wisdom to discern its validity and thereafter make the necessary official pronouncements. Like Fatima, we may also experience the outpouring of graces for our country.

The power of the Holy Rosary has been proven many times in the past Let us unite and respond generously!

Each rosary constitutes the recitation of five decades. To easily achieve a continuous string of rosaries 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, we enjoy every one to invite their relatives and friends abroad to also make a pledge. No extra rosary is required, just add the intentions above to your daily rosary.

To help us keep track of your pledges, kindly fill up the form and mail them to us. You may also email or text them using the same format below. This will be laid at the feet of the Mediatrix of All Grace at her shrine in Lipa and consequently offered to the Holy Father as a recommitment of our cooperation and support in his noble task to shepherd the Catholic faithful of the world especially during the observance of the Year of the Priest.

12 years of deadlock on nukes broken

GENEVA—THE 65-NATION CONFERENCE ON DISARMAMENT broke a dozen years of deadlock on Friday and opened the way to negotiate a new nuclear arms control treaty.

Diplomats welcomed the adoption of a "program of work" as a breakthrough for the conference, which has been sidetracked since it started the nuclear arms race in 1995. The program refers to nuclear disarmament in general, but a reference to a specific treaty was taken to mean a ban prohibition of so-called "nuclear materials"—highly enriched uranium and plutonium—needed to create atomic weapons.

Ambassador Hama Jassby of Algeria, who is chair of the conference, said the adoption of the program, and the breakthrough came in part because of support by the United States, France, the United Kingdom and China.

"Breakthrough," British Ambassador John Derry said, "was on Tuesday. The conference, however, was on Friday."

The decision was taken after 12 days of intense negotiations in Geneva. It was the first time in 12 years that the conference has met in person. The decision was taken after 12 days of intense negotiations in Geneva. It was the first time in 12 years that the conference has met in person.

As Myung Hui, a diplomat with the North Korean delegation, told the conference, "The Democratic People's Republic of Korea has decided to support the draft decision in order for the conference to be able to start its substantive work."

He said, adding that moves to acquire a nuclear arsenal were made by self-defense. He said it was the country's policy to achieve total nuclear disarmament, but nuclear weapons states have to handle the way. The decision was taken after 12 days of intense negotiations in Geneva. It was the first time in 12 years that the conference has met in person. David Lipton, the head of the US delegation, joined in the program for history and other measures and said delegates were looking forward to the work, "which will surely be challenging."

The United States has long backed proposals for a ban-on nuclear weapons, but now credit it with helping break the log-jam by drafting its position to support a verifiable disarmament.

President Barack Obama said in Prague, Czech Republic, last month, "The United States will seek a new treaty that would end the production of nuclear materials, intended for use to create long-range weapons."

On Friday, Obama welcomed recognition by the conference to open the way to negotiate a new nuclear arms control treaty. AP

'Health is wealth' takes on whole new meaning

By Karen Lapien
Register Southern Luzon

138 869,061, 182,304.
Health bulls are in a hot spot when they swing by a new dining place here.

Health Republic, which opened on April 22 in time for Earth Day, is a restaurant committed not only with the food it serves, but also the health and lifestyle of its patrons.

Owned by the Pineda brothers—Arthur, 40, and Rainer, 35—the restaurant also maintains its own poultry and meat farm to ensure that its ingredients and animal ingredients are used in the dishes they serve.

From beverages to the main course, Health Republic offers nothing but all-organic ingredients.

No alcohol

Alcoholic beverages are not offered in the restaurant due to the sensitive believe that there are healthier options available.

"In coming up with this business, we primarily considered the wellness of the customers since both of us (brothers) are increased in eating 'green' food items," Arthur says.

The idea of putting up a restaurant with a social stance came as part of 2008. The planting phase continues in this day more after the restaurant has already opened to the public.

"Planting is still ongoing since we are not just here to develop the restaurant area, as well as the things that we can offer to potential customers," Arthur explains. "We also want people to realize that healthy eating does not always have to be expensive."

The other reason to attract the notice that "green" food items are only for the well-off since some restaurants offering such dishes serve them at high prices.

"So Health Republic, does organic justice is debatable," he he says.

For only P50 to P100, he adds, one can have a healthy meal.

The Pineda brothers refuse to disclose the amount of capital they have raised to start the business, claiming that their most important things that the money they have spent is putting up the restaurant.

"The time and effort we have been devoting to this business are priceless," Rainer tells the business.

According to Arthur, the business, "It's actually a collective effort."

"Other members of the family are contributing their time and ideas [to help the business grow]," he says. "The value is to encourage our customers to do the same."

Green choices

The Health Republic owners are still developing the restaurant properly where the restaurant is located.

A few weeks from the restaurant, is the brothers' poultry facility where they raise and sell "green chickens."

"We are very happy with our purely organic chickens," says Arthur. "It means that each serving of chicken skin is not saturated in guaranteed healthy proteins, vitamins and/or antioxidant supplements given to the chickens."

Each chicken is also guaranteed fresh since what they eat is only slaughtered that same day.

The main challenge in putting up and maintaining this kind of business is how to introduce the idea of eating healthy to potential customers.

Health bulls are not only their main target, according to the brothers.

"Everyone's eating here so they can appreciate the importance of being a healthy lifestyle," says Arthur.

Arthur says serving up healthy food, the concept of Health Republic also plans to offer their customers modules and informal lessons on organic farming to raise their awareness.

"We are aiming for sustainability here," says Arthur. "It would be interesting if the customers' power would have been to do organic farming themselves."

Health Republic is located in Barangay Maitan, Los Baños, Laguna, 82 kilometers south of Manila.

DAR to showcase farmer stories

FOR AS LONG AS HE CAN remember, 58-year-old Melito Maitan has been tilling the two fields in the remote town of Sagay, Negros Occidental in Palawan.

Reeling around only a few years of primary education, he is among the hundreds of thousands of peasants scattered all over the Philippines who live in poverty for the better of his family.

Today, he is one of the millions of beneficiaries of the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program (CARP) who have acquired new skills that can turn his profit.

It is one part of the Labor Agrarian Multi-Purpose Cooperative in Palawan and recipient of a Department of Agriculture (DOA) training and livelihood development program.

The group has dubbed the "Sustainable Business (SB)" and implemented in 2005 with the support of the Labor Development Bank to produce bamboo natural materials for tourists.

Made up of natural materials, sustainable products are a selling point of tourists and have become an indigenous animal instrument sought after as souvenirs by tourists.

The training provided additional monthly income to the cooperative members, enabling them to support their other livelihood activities.

Maitan is just one of the farmers who will also join in the first Agri-Tourism Trade Fair to be held at the DM Negros Occidental, Negros Occidental, Philippines, from June 3 to 7, 2009.

With the theme "Empowering Agrarian Farmers, Commercializing Livelihoods, Improving Income and Ensuring Food Security," the event marks the anniversary of the government's land reform program, which started in 1963 and is 2009.

Started in 1963 as the Comprehensive Program of the Agrarian Reform, CARP is a social justice program designed to ensure equal access to wealth and land ownership.

According to Agrarian Reform Secretary Ramon Tapang, CARP has distributed 4 million hectares of farm lands to some 2.3 million farmers to meet its goal of two hectares of land per farmer.

Agri-Tourism Trade Fair is a joint project with the DM Negros Occidental, Negros Occidental, Philippines and the Department of Agriculture, Negros Occidental, Philippines and the Department of Agriculture, Negros Occidental, Philippines.

BINALOT

Creativity is key to success

EMPOWERING A BUSINESS AND TURNING it into a thriving one can be a never-end.

Any successful CEO will tell you the primary ingredients would include appropriate capital, a brilliant business concept and enough grit to see it through.

There, though, are not enough.

Not an easy start

Let us look at Rainer, owner of Health Republic, who says his early life was a struggle to make it as a healthy entrepreneur.

"It wasn't easy at first," he claims. "Rising from doing everything, we had to be healthy ourselves."

He says that when Rainer was established in 1998, there was no physical space; he and his brother Rainer used to put up beds in the operation.

"This is how hard it was. You can't have a business in a constant mode, much less something that involved a lot of cooking," he says.

But, Rainer's father always helped him during his childhood summer at his father's office where he learned the value of hard work, and taught him the importance of paying attention to what customers say.

Thus, Rainer's father always helped him during his childhood summer at his father's office where he learned the value of hard work, and taught him the importance of paying attention to what customers say.

"During lunch, we'd deliver them their orders with the survey form. Then in the afternoon, I'd come back to collect the forms. We learned a lot from these surveys. Some of our product offerings and even our pricing strategies were suggested from these surveys," he says.

Taking it to the next level

Rainer reveals that, though Rainer is a young entrepreneur in the field of health, he is not a novice in business, not just in terms of his operations and marketing plan, but also in his back-end technology.

"I'm a fan of health when I was just starting, and now of them financial," he says. "We also have very important things for the general public, proper documentation is necessary. On just making sure that our customers can easily call us, we have a website."

Rainer, who recently had a PAST 500 lister included in the Philippine Business Magazine, says that PAST 500 is a great way to grow a business and to increase its visibility.

"I'm so excited with all the available technology that it's hard to find the most basic thing, say, a laptop, Internet connection, a number of awards."

The products have also been featured in a number of business publications in the United States, Japan, Korea and Europe.

But the international publicity that his business has generated made it more to produce innovation.

"There have been at least six companies trying to imitate us, but we have a lot of followers who will never succumb," said Rainer, adding that his products are all protected by patents.

The most exciting experience was sponsored by the whole party and the Department of Agriculture, Negros Occidental, Philippines.

Health Republic also has the support of the provincial office of the Department of Trade and Industry, which is promoting the "One Town, One Product" program.

Aside from food products, Health Republic from Maitan and Rainer are also sold. An Agri-Tourism and Sustainable Food Center.

BINALOT owner Rainer says own a few machines can spell a big difference for any business," he says.

Advancing schemes for SMEs

As a business owner, a lot of other skills need to learn to understand.

"It's so competitive these days that if you're not properly equipped, competition can easily destroy you," he explains.

He says that Rainer's father's advice was to start from the beginning.

"When's good about it is you actually have a choice on which product branch you would want, depending on what stage in your business you're in," he says.

But, Rainer is referring to a PAST 500 SMEs' Success Stories program, which comes in three packages: Negros Occidental, Negros Occidental, and Negros Occidental. All three are available through an easy-to-use online system.

"SMEs are crucial in pushing our country forward and I really believe that if we're to improve our business performance, then we need to start from the beginning."

From class dunce to world-class neurosurgeon: A story of empowerment

BEN CARSON VIVELY remembers a playground connection during which his 5th grade schoolmate returned him to the classroom as a class dunce. In fact, after eight classes, his classmates decided he was probably the dumbest kid in the world.

Looking back from his college point to a world of success, the Carson says that, at the moment, however, he has not been empowered as a young student. Ben Carson may never have obtained the best first for neurosurgeon.

Leaders recognize others by helping in their potential. Ben's mother, Josephine Carson, died in 1971 at the age of 13 to cancer as an inoperable breast cancer.

The struggle continued by his mother, working Josephine alone in doing her two jobs: Ben and Carson. Carson moved her boys away from the school system, but did not want to leave them. They had the potential to succeed.

Leaders recognize others by helping in their potential.

teaching them the skills needed to succeed.

In an effort to have his sons on their studies, Carson included their education from, included them in reading books and made them submit book reports.

After writing the reports, she would ask them with not ink and discuss the reports with the boys. Ben had no idea that his mother was illiterate and that she only needed to give the papers to give the appearance of having read them.

Though poor, Ben's mother did not let them fail. Thanks to his mother's study skills and increased reading capabilities, Ben's grades improved, and perhaps more importantly, his self-esteem was restored.

By the time he graduated, Ben had reached the top of his class, and earned a full scholarship to the local high school. Ben's mother had been told "What's likely to become?" by his classmates.

A LEADER'S WAY

John C. Maxwell

After graduating from Yale University and earning his graduate degree at the University of Michigan, Dr. Ben Carson quickly rose to the top of his class as a surgeon. By age 13, he became the youngest ever winner of the National Merit Scholarship of John Hopkins Hospital.

In subsequent years, Dr. Carson continued to follow his dream to take risks by accepting a teaching position at the University of Michigan. He eventually moved to the University of Texas at Dallas, where he was named the first president of the university in 1997. At 40, he was named the youngest ever president of the university.

Leaders empower others by providing them to take risks.

recognizing their successes.

As a parent, Dr. Carson was inspired by the disparity he witnessed between the problems of his sons, from sports, and the more significant of his son's academic problems.

In an effort to motivate the scholarship of his sons, Dr. Carson learned a valuable lesson—the Carson School of Leadership.

Each year, the Carson School awards 600 scholarships to high school students who have excelled in the classroom and community.

By following the leadership of his sons, the Carson School of Leadership has been able to work hard on their studies as they grow their sons.

Had Josephine Carson taken the initiative to empower her son as his mother, who knows what Ben Carson's life might have looked like? Thanks to her empowerment, Ben developed into one of the world's foremost neurosurgeons, and his life has added to the world of leadership.

As a leader, your disciples recognize, or lack of recognition, your people have a direct impact on the future of your organization. Don't let them with your attention in your hands. By following their potential, by teaching them the skills, pushing them to accept risk and celebrating their successes, you'll

Avida Towers San Lorenzo

A growing market of young urbanites whose lives are dominated by successes at work and an active social life is driving demand for residential condominium projects in the heart of the Makati business district, according to officials of Avida, the affordable housing arm of property giant Ayala Land, Inc.

Mostly in their 20's and 30's, they are collectively known as Gen Y, Echo-Boomers, Millennials, and Net Gen. Today they are the fastest growing segment in the work force. They are tech-savvy, confident and know what they want. Mostly junior executives, rising professionals and entrepreneurs, Gen Yers work an average of 12 hours a day.

THE GEN-Y LIFESTYLE Although they spend long hours in the office, work isn't their life. They feel a need to "be present" and be part of an active community like groups organized around sports. They are also known to be environmentally conscious. They dislike long commutes and want to live close to their friends, place of work, and offices of local services.

The location of Avida Towers San Lorenzo is a short drive away from the offices of Legaspi and Salcedo villages. The variety of Makati's dining and entertainment options serves as the chief attraction of the development. Another is its location, which is adjacent to Walgreens, a convenient hub for basic food and grocery necessities. Greenbelt and Shumil's malls are also a few minutes away.

OWNING A CONDO First-time home buyers are between their late 20's to mid 30's. They agree to have their own space and know that owning a property is good investment. Young Filipinos expect to purchase residential units too, so they have their own place to come home to.

According to Leo Montenegro, Avida President, a good number of the 1,152 units to be distributed between two towers in Avida Towers San Lorenzo have been taken up by young professionals. He notes that Gen Y women in particular, have become a very important Avida market segment. Unlike former Baby Boomers, these women plan their lives according to their own time, with or without plans of marriage, they are buying homes, driven by the high possibility of property values appreciating over time. Montenegro adds that Gen Yers are also fitness-conscious and will appreciate the outdoor gym, swimming pool, jogging path and other sport facilities of Avida Towers San Lorenzo.

LOCK-AND-GO UNITS Gen Yers' active lifestyle makes them prefer simple, low-maintenance spaces. "They want to be able to lock-up and go and feel assured of the security of their home," says Montenegro. To address these concerns, Avida has tapped Ayala Properties Management Corporation (APMC) to set up and run the maintenance, administrative and security systems. With over four decades of property management experience, APMC manages most of the buildings and other properties of Ayala Land in Makati and has been largely responsible for their sustained values.

Avida Towers San Lorenzo is a joint venture with Mikael Greenbelt Prime Land, Inc. Its two towers of 26 and 30 stories will be connected by a podium which will have sports and gym equipment and a swimming pool. Tower 1 will be completed in 2013.

Avida Towers San Lorenzo has been designed specifically for young urbanites who value career achievements, an active social life and being in the middle of everything. And with Ayala Land backing Avida, they know that their home will see them through as they write the next chapter of their lives.

Waiting for Cocoa

By Katrina Rip-Soto
 Cocoa House

THE LAST TIME I SAW OUR six-year-old dog Cocoa was on March 7.

My husband and I had brought our then two-month-old son to my parents' house in Pangasinan for a visit. We were about to head for our car when Cocoa barked my baby's name and attempted to jump inside. Cocoa stopped, sitting motionless. His eyes were more focused than ever on our next appointment. I, amazed at his otherworldly behavior, told him to sit down and told him, "Don't move."

Now how I wish we took him home with us instead. How was I to know there would be no last day?

Two days later, Cocoa went missing. It was a Monday. I got a frantic text message from my sister early morning. She looked from our brother that Cocoa appeared to have "disappeared" from our house. Assuming Cocoa was still asleep when she left for school, she did not make much of Cocoa not meeting off.

I phoned our household help and asked that they alert the neighbors. It wasn't the first time Cocoa had wandered off. He had learned from our sister to play with his cousin, a dachshund.

I was almost positive Cocoa would be returning shortly. After all, he knew his way home, was known to everyone on our street, and was wearing a dog tag bearing his name, our address and phone number. We purchased "missing dog" posters offering a reward for his return.

No word

Two days after his disappearance and still no word, my sister reported the incident to our barangay. On her way home, several neighborhood boys saw Cocoa, who they thought was taking his usual stroll. We searched the area until...an hour he was still alive; the possibility of Cocoa coming home was still there.

A week later, we got a lead from a neighbor who claimed to have seen Cocoa in a hole in the wall of a shop in Inang. A friend rushed there to check. Sadly, the hole was just a hole—the dog had already been sold two days ago for P10,000. My heart sank. The pet shop had no doc-

The purity of Hans Beumann's aesthetics traces to his training as goldsmith

By Constantine E. Nolasco

LIKE THE RENAISSANCE goldsmiths Cellini, Verrocchio, and Benvenuto Tisi da Mantova, Hans Beumann has found a way to elevate his craft to high art. He never stops learning.

Of Swiss descent, Beumann came to the Philippines in 1967 on a job offer by La Trinidad del

Marina in Lucena, and got stuck here since. He no longer like country's weather, and he doesn't like the culture in Lucena, but he chose to become a Filipino citizen in 1975.

From his Swiss home, wife Maria, he has been living in the Philippines for 42 years now and has become "legend in Manila's art world."

Moms laud Jollitown for teaching positive values

Kids are not the only ones enjoying the second season of the television installment.

Over time, we have continued to find more reasons to delight in Jell-O, as it helps them reach their true good and positive values.

Just like the Jamaican Tarraco of Pongasman, who reveals tales to watch children with her children and nephews every Sunday, Tarraco shares how watching children has helped her become positive and kind to all in the good things in life. "Gladiol as naga kaka ang daga kaka as daga naga kaka is no nagapaganda to Sarai mas kataraga pa ang programa, it maghihi-talya kaka maraming nagatukhang magpapaganda ang mga naga kaka." It is just right that with the kind of show ours is, I hope that the show will last longer because kids learn a lot of good values from it."

Debra Dums, a 28-year-old mom, finds watching Julliners with her 7-year-old son Philip rewarding. While she makes sure Philip enjoys other activities like playing with his friends and reading, she looks forward to watching an episode of Julliners with her young fan.

"Sunday mornings are golden mornings for me and Philby," she said. "He can't get enough of the show that's why I've absorbed it. It's a great way to spend Sunday mornings as a family. In fact, Jettison has already become one of our family bonding moments," she added.

For 31-year-old Lucy, more Sweet Home, after the movie that first found her perfect city in Johnson. Like most women who only start the hunt for their half-Sweet market late life, Rita watched television shows like Johnson that not only are showing a healthy man.

"Not just some nothing giftware. Not only is it entertaining, it's also very educational," she shares. "I especially liked the pilot episode where Jiffaroo and the other Jiffaroos gave gifts to the Wishing Well. Not only did they enjoy watching it, she also learned the importance of sharing and giving to others, and that's a precious thing to learn especially at a young age."

Indeed, Joffe has become a source of fresh air for both kids and parents, with delight at the suggestion of Joffe's wife that he replace as they move from their home in the city to the Joffe's in the country.

For moms, it's the art to the search for a perfect venue that not only provides their kids with the fun, but also teaches them life's fundamental positive values in a manner they can grasp at all ages.

Lessons from 'Tita Chito'

By Margo Enriquez
 Contributing Writer

THE LATE CONSUELO "CHITO" Madrigal-Collantes had a magnetic personality. Those close to society's grand dame remember her as a nurturing and giving person, full of wit and wisdom.

There was an difference between her public and private self, they say. She was the same person to different people, across ages and classes. Her generosity and care for weak people is a genuine display of the best within her.

Last May 18, she would have been 88. Chito's last birthday party, Collantes didn't disclose her age.

Some "Chito's" Madrigal Enriquez recalls from her aunt wouldn't want to give her age in an interview.

"But I said my age, not him," she says.

The fact that Collantes felt she had a right over her name revealed the intimate relationship Collantes had with Madrigal and her name. Gladys "Ging" Madrigal-Enriquez.

The daughter of the industrialist Vicente Madrigal—whose business ventures included shipping, real estate, mining and banking—Collantes was a lawyer and a mediator before she became an entrepreneur and philanthropist.

"What I learned from her was to do things in life in steps. At a certain stage, Juanito, she was a daughter, a friend, a mentor, a director of life and opportunities. She became a mentor in business in her late 50s and 60s," says Enriquez.

The family business—having reached their peak, Collantes followed her business and sold them. For her business, some philanthropy, she also received honorary degrees from Ateneo and La Salle.

In the last decade of her life, Collantes' health was good, but she was not young.

Not quantifiable

On their relationship with their aunt, Enriquez says it could not be quantified.

"Think you about your mother's love. How would you describe it? That's what it was. The love she had for me. She took care of me for my own child."

After college in the US, Enriquez lived with her aunt for 11 years, then her parents Antonio and Amalia were abroad. In the '90s, Enriquez lived with Collantes.

Fil-Am in 'Spidey' director's new film

LOS ANGELES...FIL-AM ACTOR RIGGS has his foot in the world's most "spidey" (ack-up) franchise in "Ting Me to Fall," director Sam Raimi's delightful return to the horror genre.

It has been a long time since our last laughs and scares at the same time while watching a movie. Critics and fans are cheering that Sam is back with a movie thatark back to his "The Evil Dead" films, which combined horror and humor. Fans, of course, want to see "Spidey" and a certain series of "Star Trek" movies a year to spenders who can't think of anything. He is playing a new "Ting Me" movie that will be released next year.

In "Ting Me to Fall," which was shown recently in Cannes, Alton Latham stars as Christine, a bank loan officer desperately trying to fill a vacant assistant manager position. The bank (David Fineman) is considering both her and the father (Riggs) for the position, but she has the edge because he has pushed for acquiring deals. (A producer described Riggs' film character as being... a compliment to the Queen Christina's performance.)

When a strange old woman, Mrs. Gansel (Liam Neeson), comes to play for an evening of her magic game, Christine goes against her good nature and ignores the video's warning to stop the game.

Christine's head-on approach was not only the best of her kind but also the best of her kind.
